Aim

Identifying the importance of quarry ponds for amphibian conservation

Quarry pond (N = 15)

Control pond (N = 15)

Highlights

- Species richness is higher in quarry ponds compared with control.
- Sunlit warm microhabitats and the absence of fish predators are key factors.
- Quarry ponds have a high conservation value for amphibians.

Secies 4 - Quarry Control

Kettermann, M., & Fartmann, T. (2023). Quarry ponds are hotspots of amphibian species richness. Ecological Engineering, 190, 106935. doi: 10.1016/j.ecoleng.2023.106935